

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE MINOR IN HISTORY

The minor, which requires 21 credits, is organized around the student's interest in a particular area of history. It is defined either by geography (e.g., United States, Latin America) or by topic (e.g., imperialism, social change). Courses must be taken for a letter grade. No grade lower than "C" may be applied to the history minor. At least twelve of the 21 credits must be taken at Stony Brook. The specific distribution of the credits should be determined in consultation with the Director of Undergraduate studies.

Here's an example of an acceptable distribution:

- A. One two-semester survey course in the period of the student's interest at the 100 or 200 level (6 credits)
- B. Two other courses at the 200 level (6 credits)
- C. Three courses at the 300 or 400 level (9 credits)

Total: 21 credits

(Note: HIS 447, 487, or 495–496 may not be applied to the minor.)
